Question A

【解答例】 Even though liberal arts subjects are not practical, they are very useful in making a career decision because students can foster their critical thinking and reasoning skills and develop a set of more balanced skills by studying them.

Question B

【解答例】 There are lots of people who have succeeded by receiving a liberal arts education and then applying the skills learned into specialized fields.

Question C

【解答例①】

I think that practical majors should be considered more important in the near future for the following two reasons. First, choosing practical majors helps university students a lot more when they conduct job-search activities. One of their immediate but major concerns is whether they can find employment, so majoring in practical subjects can surely prepare them to become an asset in related job fields. Second, those majors that are directly related to real life are more interesting to pursue. I suppose it is difficult for most college students to spend a couple of years studying what is detached from reality. (100)

【解答例②】

Liberal arts should be considered more important in the near future. This is because liberal arts make us human. We should become humane with fundamental knowledge through studying liberal arts. Thinking only about specialized fields, we will lose something important as human beings. Now is the time when we human beings should decide where we are going in the future. Progress itself is wonderful. While making progress, we may have lost what is important for human beings, which is causing various problems. It follows from this that we should continue to study liberal arts. (94)
